Tired of not knowing where to go to get your hair, makeup and nails done? Serviced is a Byrdie-approved guide to the best treatments in your city, all tested and approved by beauty editors and an entr – so you'll never leave with regret after a beauty salon. Countdown to the top hair salon in Los Angeles isn't easy feat. For those of us living in the city of Angels, a new fashionable salon seems to be opening up on Melrose or in a brownstone in the Arts District every time we come across on our morning run. (And in the morning run, we mean bagels taken.) However, there are a few places where tried and true savvy girls turn to whenever their tresses are in need of a makeover, be it cut or color. These are the places where L.A. girls flock to many times because the quality of the cuts given is simply incapable - because don't find the perfect salon one of the hardest beauty links to find out? We've rounded up eight of the top hair salons in Los Angeles and we don't know where we'd be without them. Read on to see which makes the cut as the best hair salon L.A. has to offer. Founded by color expert Tracey Cunningham and veteran hairstyling stylist Neil Weisberg, Mèche Salon offers the perfect service. With a list of famous names such as Shailene Woodley, Drew Barrymore, Gwyneth Paltrow and Emma Stone, we are just too happy to present Mèche Salon as one of the top salons in Los Angeles. A cut at Mèche starts at $175 and colors at $150. These three natural remedies will give your fibers a little extra push. Although my gender is often accused, I don't want to spend an hour getting ready in the morning. I want to bathe, do my hair and get out of my apartment in less than twenty minutes. So without saying, I was excited to try new T3 Bespoke Labs wet or dry straight iron – could this be the answer to my time and unruly hair problems? Straight, or flat, the isthoth is used at high temperatures to flatten and smooth the hair, and they have been around for more than a century. The best ones today use ceramics, rather than metal, plates to distribute heat more evenly, more efficiently and with less harsh effects on hair strands. Dazzling Debut!! Iron T3 works for professionals, then it must be perfect for me. And what better than during New York City's fashion week? Last month, T3 sponsored Orlando Pita, a Manhattan-based stylist who uses newly released iron to create stunning hairstyles on models showcasing the latest couture from the likes of designers Oscar de la Renta, Doo-Ri Chung, Derek Lam and Proenza Schouler. For the Oscar de la Renta show on February 5, Pita used T3 iron to create a bizarre variations on the classic ponytail. Oscar wanted a youthful, groomed ending, Pita notes; he used iron to complete the review. Loopy ponytail adds polished edge - it's fresh but unlike girls who can do it themselves. The head must be really straight to stick out, he said. The Professionally there is much praise for T3: You can dial or dial down the temperature, but it fits throughout the ceramic plate no matter how much you use it, Pita adds. Straight ScienceThe StraightThe use an innovative building called SmartPipes, which allows ceramic plates to heat up immediately and accurately to the chosen temperature (between 140°F and 410°F), and to maintain that heat consistently for reliable results. This also helps prevent voltage spikes, which are often responsible for affecting the lifespan of iron. T3 iron plates are embedded with tourmaline, a semi-precious gem that protects the hair epidermis from drying out. Tourmaline also produces infrared heat of the sheets, penetrating deeper into the hair so that it dries faster (and iron can be used on wet hair). Moreover, the T3 iron is not only effective but also beautiful, with a row of sparkling crystals on the handle - you will not be afraid to leave it on the shower counter. A warning: although iron can be used on wet or dry hair, I recommend drying in just a few minutes at least to remove excessive moisture. (T3 also has a number of high-end items in the field – its Evolution Professional dryer ($300) patented technology that delivers a significantly uniform and soothing airflow, as well as a removable air filter - and cleanliness.) Irons of T3 are available in two sizes: narrow, which features 1 tourmaline infusion ceramic plate, and wide iron, with 1 3/4 plate width. You won't find the T3 desk at your typical corner pharmacy. They are available at beauty retailer Luxe Sephora as well as high-end department stores such as Nordstrom (JWN) - Get Report and Henri Bendel (800-423-6335), or in Canada at Holt Renfrew (866-465-8736). I was surprised to learn that T3 iron costs only $200 - less than half the cost of a permanent solution, just salon as Japanese hair straightener treatment. My hair was smooth and straight after just a quick scan with T3, much faster (and cheaper) than a trip to the salon. I'd rather own a portable iron than have to spend the time, effort and money of getting it straight by a stylist. Unsurprisingly, the salon is a little less enthusiastic. Edward Tricomi, owner of high-end salon Warren Tricomi, said the desk would not replace a blow dryer. However, they are excellent tools, Tricomi, who recommends choosing an iron (always ceramic plating) based on its shape and size. Other excellent straight iron options include Solia, which has ion ceramic plates and Sedu, an iron made in the United States that has ultrafine ceramic/tourmaline panels. Or, try T3. According to Kent Yu, head of gardenia, Calif.-based T3 Micro company, T3 Bespoke Labs is the latest, most sophisticated collection of hair styling tools from T3 yet. The next time I wake up late for work, I won't be stressed -- I'll just turn on the iron straight up, do my hair and get ready to get out of the house in a few minutes.
